1. In the Tengshaho (Chengshaho, 122-04, 39-12 -- Hsingshutun [122-09, 39-15] in the vicinity of Tengshaho) area there are 2000 wounded Chinese Communist soldiers. Some of them live with civilians, although most of them are in Hachiatun, one kilometer east of Hsingshutun [122-10, 39-17, three kilometers northeast of Hsingshutun ?].
2. The Chinese Communists have organized a local self-defense corps in southern Liaoning Province. All men over the age of eighteen are required to join the corps. The present food shortage in this area is forcing middle-aged men to join the Chinese Communists in daily increasing numbers.
3. In southern Liaoning the Chinese Communist forces are commandeering cereals from the civilian population and shipping them to Fuchou Bay (121-30, 39-42). From there they are shipped to the Chiao Tung Peninsula by sailboat.
4. The Chinese Communists in Dairen have divided their military training groups into three classes. One is being trained on the Laohutan (121-41, 38-53) drill field, and the other two on the two drill fields in front of the Dairen City Hall. On each drill ground 1200 (?) soldiers can be drilled simultaneously. After the two-month training period, the troops are sent to the front.
5. Peace Preservation Corps troops in Port Arthur, Dairen, and Chinchou (121-43, 39-07) have been issued yellow summer uniforms. [REDACTED] which states that the Peace Preservation Corps has been renamed the Chia An Tui (治安隊) or Civil Police Corps. In the Dairen area these troops have been ordered to wear insignia bearing the characters "閩東公署", which may be translated "Kuantung Administrative Headquarters".
